

---

Reflective Living with Dr. Angela

---

Developing Your Intellectual Gifts

Are you developing your intellectual gifts?

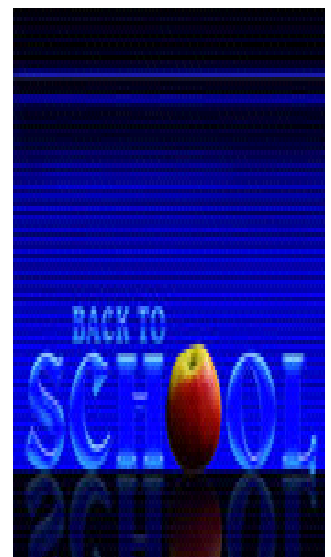

Even if you had negative childhood learning experiences, they are not worth sacrificing your adulthood.

There is no denying that developing your intellectual gifts is a primary pathway toward quality living. So you cannot afford to give up on developing your intellectual gifts.

You have been endowed by your creator with unlimited mental capacity to solve problems that are specifically aligned with your intelligences and passions. But you must remove limited thinking. Begin with simple and free ways to develop your intelligence. Seek knowledge from others. At some point, you may have to determine if you should pursue a more formal means of education.

Regardless, once you begin this journey, you will want more! You will be faced with the question: Is the cost of education high? Well, yes it is! But living without it, is so much higher!

And remember; give yourself
the gift of reflection.

Similar topics are available electronically:

- Your Intellectual Gifts
- Ways You Are Smart