Interpersonal Intelligence

Do you have a gift of leadership?

This gift is categorized as interpersonal intelligence or "people smart". This intelligence showcases an understanding of the intentions, motivations, and desires of others.

It also takes into account the talent of networking, bringing people together, drawing out and leading the efforts of others as well as mediating and resolving conflict between people.

Educators, salespeople, promoters, faith and political leaders, counselors, business leaders, and entrepreneurs all demonstrate a well-developed interpersonal intelligence.

Too often, this intelligence is confused with being high energy, bossy, or pushy. Such characteristics, however, allow for leadership capacity that affords many friends, empathy for others, and street smarts.

So if you have the gift of inspiring, influencing, mobilizing, and motivating others, the world is waiting for you to rule.
