

Reflective Living with Dr. Angela

Leadership Values

What are your leadership values?

It is important to know the values to which you have an unwavering commitment and passion. Your leadership values should only consist of those beliefs that have been tried by the fires of authenticity and truth.

Values focus on the future you want and are not constrained by the beliefs of your past. Living your values is a powerful leadership tool that promotes influence, especially considering that values are more than something you possess; values are the essence of who you are.

The most earnest of your values will compel you to do what is right, when it is right, because it is right, and then to do it right.

An investigation of your personal values is important because values not only shape your administration, values shape your life.

Similar topics are available electronically:

- Leadership Philosophy
- Transformational Leadership
- Situational Leadership

So remember to give yourself the gift of reflection.